State Early Childhood Development Coordinating Council (SECDCC) Meeting

Details:

Monday, April 24, 2017 2-3:30 p.m.

The Wilson Building

1350 Pennsylvania Ave. NW, Room G9 Washington, DC 20004

Purpose: The next State Early Childhood Development Coordinating Council (SECDCC) meeting will focus on the launch of Capital Quality, OSSE's new Enhanced Quality Rating and Improvement System, and the Early Development Instrument (EDI) website launch. Learn more information at the meeting about the new QRIS and OSSE's approach to supporting providers as they transition from Going for the Gold to Capital Quality.

The new EDI website and toolkit will also be unveiled at the SECDCC meeting, which were developed in conjunction with Raise DC and the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA). EDI is a validated, population-based measure of early child development in five key domains: physical health, emotional maturity, social competence, language and cognitive skills, and communications skills and general knowledge. The goal is to promote the use of valid and reliable citywide and neighborhood-level data and maps reflecting children's health and development across multiple domains. These tools will also be used to engage community stakeholders in interpreting the data, and brainstorming local strategies for addressing geographic and/or domain specific variations in developmental outcomes. State Superintendent Kang and Raise DC leadership will unveil the website and toolkit, and invite early childhood stakeholders to view these critical resources to foster collaboration and test local strategies for improving child outcomes.
